Godey's Lady's Book for March presents some notable attractions, not the least of which is a cleverly executed frontispiece portraying "The Frown," a companion picture to "The Smile," which proved to be such a point of merit in the January issue. "The Frown" is a fine steel engraving of excellent finish and artistic workmanship. It presents the usual strong features which are known to characing of excellent finish and artistic workmanship. It presents the usual strong features which are known to characterize the illustrations appearing from time to time in Godey's Lady's Book. The fashion plates of this magazine display more taste and common sense than those of any similar publication we have ever seen. The work design this month is quite unique and is accompanied by an extraplate of silhouettes illustrating an article in which amateurs are instructed how to make shadow portraits. The reading matter for March comprises among other things the conclusion of Helen Mathers' story, "Love Lies A-Bleeding," and the continuation of "In Her Own Right." Next month there will begin a charming French serial by J. V. Prichard. The editor considers this a very strong and dramatic story which will be certain to captivate the readers of Godey's. An experienced physician advises that fingers and toes which have been slightly frost bitten and which subsequently suffer from burning, itching and prickling sensations, should be painted at first once, and afterwards twice a day, with a mixture of dilute nitric acid and peppermint water in equal proportions. After the application has been made for three or four days the skin becomes darkened, and the epidermous is shed, healthy skin appearing under it. The cure is effective in from ten to fourteen days. An army surgeon has found this plan very effectual among soldiers who were unable to wear their boots in consequence of having had frozen feet. They were in this way, soon rendered eapable of returning to duty.

A Remarkable Escape.

Valentines-Why Do We Send Them:

Many boys on the night of the 3d of July do not go to bed, or if they do so, they arrange to be called long before sunrise, that they may fire guns, blow horns, and make various other noises, by way of celebrating the Fourth of July. If these boys were asked: "What is the Fourth of July, and why do you is the Fourth of July, and why do you celebrate it?" they would be at a loss to answer. The fourteenth of February is regarded as St. Valentine's day and in many places it is the custom with young people to send Valentines to their friends of the opposite sex. This used to be a pleasant letter, ornamented with cut paper and other devices by the sender, the chief point being to keep from the one who received it the name of the giver. These missives were keep from the one who received it the name of the giver. These missives were called "Valentines." Of late years, Valentines so called, are made for sale; some of them being marvels of cut and embossed paper, and pictures, grading all the way down to vile and insulting caricatures, which no decent person would look at, much less purchase. If any girl is asked what a Valentine is, and why he sends it on February fourteenth, she will be as much puzzled for an answer as her brother, when asked to tell why he celebrates the fourth day of July. The answer would be that "it of July. The answer would be that "it is St. Valentine's day," but if asked who St. Valentine was, and why his day should be celebrated, they would fail to give an answer. Well, the girls would be no worse off than the learned man who tried to answer the same question. If there ever was a St. Valen-tine, it is doubtful if he had anything tine, it is doubtful if he had anything to do with our Valentine day. Those who have looked into the matter say, that in very early times, in several countries, especially those in the northern part of Europe, it was the custom of the young to assemble; the names of the girls were placed in a box, from which the young men drew them. The girl whose name was drawn by each girl whose name was drawn by each was to be his Valentine, and he was to

Why do Doctors Prescribe Liquors? Because they know not what to do; or because sometimes a little liquor serves to kindle the exhausted fires of digestion. But this liquor prescription is bad business for the patients, for it makes drunkards out of a large majority of them. Brown's Iron Bitters does not kindle a temporary fire. It nourishes, enriches, strengthens, purifies. It drives out debility and dyspepsia, and sets the invigorated system at work on a basis of health.

Though possessed of a grave turn of mind, Gov. Seymour had at times a keen sense of humor, and said many droll things. His allusion to Grant at the meeting of the Army of the Cumberland in this city, when he declared that he was a better soldier than his old antagonist, because in 1868 he (Grant) had run farther and the faster, was incomparably happy. Some years ago an incident occurred which at once illustrated Seymour's goodness of heart and his sense of the humorous. Driving along the Deerfield road one day he came across a farmer in distress. The latter's wagon had broken down under a heavy pile of wood, his harness was out of kelter and his position was one of abject misery. He had in vain ap-pealed to passers-by to help him. But Seymour was a friend in need. He helped the farmer to repair his wagon and reload the wood thereupon and loaned the farmer a part of his own loaned the farmer a part of his own harness. The Governor then went his way. Afterwards, when the farmer was telling his story, he startled his hearers by saying: "I never felt so mean in my life. The wood was stolen from the Governor's wood-pile." The joke of it all was that during the whole transaction Gov. Seymour knew that the wood was his own, but after giving the wood was his own, but after giving his side of the story, with a merry twinkle in his eye he was wont to add: "The poor fellow needed the wood more than I did." It is unnecessary to add that Gov. Seymour's wood-pile was never again disturbed by that particular neighbor.

The St. Marys Argus gives the following description of another new swindle: "Two men are now making their headquarters in St. Marys and traveling over the country selling clotn to the farmers. Their scheme is take some calicos, muslin, etc., and put them into a package with the cloth. They go to the farmer and offer him the calico at 2 or 3c. a yd., the muslin at the same price and the cloth at their own price. Of course the calico and muslin is cheap. but you have to buy the cloth to get these. The calico and muslin being cheap the farmer buys the cloth think-

Biscuit Without Shortening.

It is a well known fact that most people use too much lard and other grease in their cooking, and that many cases of dyspepsia are due to this cause. Whoever teaches us how to curtail the use of shortening is a benefactor to his use of shortening is a benefactor to his race. It seems almost incredible, but it is nevertheless true that delicious biscuit can be made without lard or butter. If you will use Prof. Horsford's Phosphatic Baking Powder with ordinary flour and sweet milk a most delicious result will be obtained. The biscuit will be exceedingly light and tender, and can be eaten hot with inpunity.
